INTERVIEW

What are 3-4 personal characteristics that you value most? Why are they important to you?

- Charity, because the bible says it is important to have
- Kindness, because everybody could use more kindness
- Courage to do what's right, because you need to do what's right

How would you describe your personality?

- I would ask somebody else to describe it for me
- Sometimes not so confident

If you were an animal or an object, what kind of animal or object would you be? Why this animal/object?

- Either a rock or a horse, because I like horses, and rocks are safe (sturdy, dependable, etc.)

You've met your next best friend, what are the most important things they need to know about you?

- That I'm loyal
- That I'm not good at talking

If you won the lottery, what are the top three things you'd do? Why did you choose these activities?

- Buy a house, because I'd like to own a house
- Go travelling, because I've always wanted to go travelling
- Fix [other sister]'s car, because I sold it to her (and it doesn't work)

If your family or friends were to describe you, what words would they use?

- loud
- Crazy and fat and weird (– wait that's how I would describe myself –)

INTERVIEW CONT.

What are your favourite things to do? Why?

- Read books
- Do crafts
- Shopping
- Baking cause I like food – cookies, and chocolate annd –
- ^^^ Cause I enjoy these things
- Look at Facebook, but I don't know how much I like, I just do it alllll the time
- Eat chocolate!

If you could live in a certain time period from history, which would you choose and why?

- Maybe victorian, because those times interested me - castles! Fancy dresses! And.. people rode horses!

How would you describe your personal style?

- Messy
- Careful
- Thoughtful
- Fat

Are there any brands that you like/dislike? If so, what do you like/dislike about them?

Likes: anywhere that sells stuff she wants to buy AND horse ranches

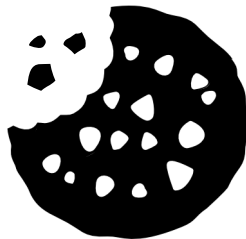

Dislikes: anything that sells stuff she doesn't want to buy..

IDEATION

Objects to represent Cassie:

- Banana: Fun, silly, well-liked
- Cookies: Good for sharing, well liked, friendly
- Whip cream: Likeable, soft, quiet
- Toy Piano: fun, toys are friendly,

Here is a sideview of a banana.

This sketch is recognizable, but missing the fun/silly element it needs to connect it to Cassie.

This is the banana from a different viewpoint. The shape has been simplified into black-and-white. Doing so causes the sketch to lose it's friendly appeal.

IDEATION CONT.

This is yet another perspective of the banana. It is less easily recognizable, but the unusual viewpoint and the addition of some colour lends to its fun feel.

Now the banana is sketched slide - showing the inner softness. The 'fun' appeal of this sketch comes mainly from its colour.

Here the banana has been skinned. The sketch fails to capture the fun, friendliness that might be captured by a similar photograph.

IDEATION CONT.

Cassie spends a lot of time on her phone, so this sketch combines that idea, with the silliness of a 'banana phone.' However it needs the contexts of the human face and hand to be clear what it is.

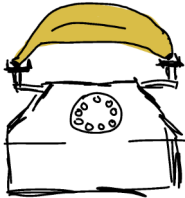

Here the banana has become a toy gun, which has a fun element to it, but does not suit Cassie's much more pacifist nature.

Similar to a previous sketch, this is a sliced banana. With colour, this is relatively recognizable, however it may not translate well to black and white versions.

IDEATION CONT.

A banana peel sketched like this is reminiscent of the popular cartoon gag. However, though it is fun, it is a different sort of fun that suits Cassie (more prank-fun than the silly-fun that she is).

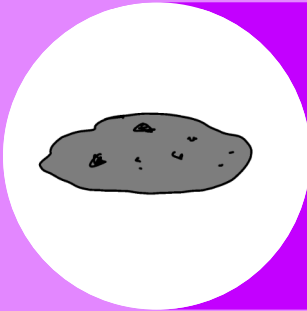

Another variation on the banana phone, this time with an old-fashioned aesthetic, because Cassie mentioned the time period she might like to live in being the victorian era (although this style of phone is really not that old).

A modernized version of the banana phone, to represent the vast amount of her spare time Cassie spends on her phone.

IDEATION CONT.

For a small change of pace, here is a typical cookie, as viewed from the side and slightly above. It is not an interesting sketch, however the idea of a cookie is very well suited to Cassie due to her love of baking and the cookie's inherent friendly, likeable-ness.

Here is the same cookie, with a bite taken out of it. From this particular angle, the sketch is not well-suited to becoming a logo, however, some variation of the idea might work well.

Representing Cassie's joy of baking, combined with her sharing nature, this sketch shows the warm homey imagery of a fresh pan of cookies, ready to be shared and eaten.

IDEATION CONT.

A different view of the cookies, this time showing a stack of two which could be eaten by a single person or shared with another.

The cookie now sits beside a glass of milk like an after-school snack, or an offering for a certain christmas anti-burglar. Cassie doesn't celebrate christmas, though, nor is she school-aged, so this sketch does not suit perfectly.

The previous idea of the fun and silly banana is now combined with the warm, friendliness of the cookie. Some of the cooki-ness is lost, however, by the perfunctory banana shape; it loses it's imperfectness that lends other cookies some of their warm and friendly feel.

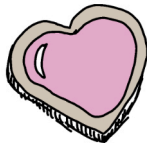

IDEATION CONT.

This cookie has been shaped like a horse. Cassie really likes horses, and they are a solid, dependable, loyal animal to their handlers, which reflects Cassie's value on being a loyal friend.

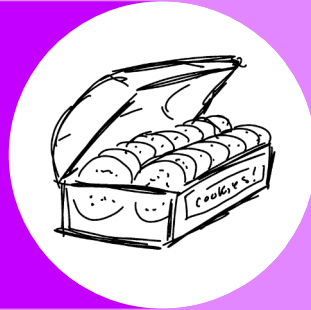

A cookie shown with a bite taken out of it. This is not the best angle for such a shape to be shown in the context of a logo, as the irregular shape is unrecognizable from a distance.

The cookie has been shaped like a heart, representing Cassie's caring nature, and value of personal characteristics like kindness and charity.

IDEATION CONT.

Packaged cookies are idea for sharing representing Cassie's love of shairing. The package also could represent Cassie's reserved, quieter nature. However, this sketch does not represent Cassie well, because she enjoys home baked cookies over store bought.

A big plate of cookies are great to show Cassie's love of sharing, however, this is not a sketch that would translate well to a simplified logo.

This sketch is meant to show a fresh-baked, still steaming cookie. However, cookie steam is difficult to draw so it looks like a baked potato that is burnt and smoking.

IDEATION CONT.

This is a can of whipcream. Whipcream is fun, and well-liked. It also has a soft quality to it, representing Cassie's inner kindness and friendliness.

Here the top of the whip cream can is shown, spooting out a bit of whip cream in a fun, fireworks-esque spatter.

The whip cream in this sketch is piped into a swirl. The imagery is alright, but Cassie doesn't use piping tips often, so this sketch seems a little unsuitable.

IDEATION CONT.

Here are some other sketches of whipped cream. They are pretty, but don't hold much value conceptually.

This swirl of whipped cream has been reversed into black and white, which negates the soft, fluffy, likeable appeal of the whipped cream.

This is an abstracted representation of the whipped cream swirl, which has a flowy, delicate nature. However, it is not that recognizable as whip cream.

IDEATION CONT.

This sketch of a whip cream swirl, as seen from above, has the appearance of something else, such as a coiled snake, which misses the mark conceptually for Cassie.

In line with her love of music, this sketch shows a the keyboard of a small piano.

This piano is the children's toy version of a piano, meant to be very fun and playful. However, the abstract shape of it may not be easily recognizable.

This is another sketch of a piano keyboard, shown from the front.

This is a children's keyboard, intended to come across as very fun and playful.

This is a variation on the previous sketch, transforming the original shape of the child's keyboard into a fun cat themed version.

SKETCHES

The concept here is a cookie broken apart to share.,
Representing Cassie's sharing, caring nature.

However, the broken cookie may appear more as a representation of inner trauma, rather than being fun, friendly, and shareable.

This sketch combines a cookie with the image of a horse, representing Cassie's friendly nature, her loyalty to those she has a bond with, and her love of both food and horses!

However, the detail required to make the horse recognizable is ill-suited to a logo application.

The imagery of an oven mitt, combined with a cookie represents Cassie's warm, caring and sharing nature.

However, the oven mitt may come across more like a winter mitten, thereby losing some of the intended meaning.

SKETCHES CONT.

This concept combines the friendly, sharable, lovable cookie, with another lovable image – a cute dog. This represents the sense of loyalty Cassie has to her friends.

However the dog may require too much detail comparatively to its size, which may not translate into a logo well.

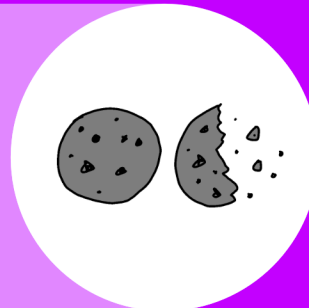

This sketch combines the warm friendly nature shared by Cassie and cookies, with a fun silly vibe supplied by the bright yellow banana.

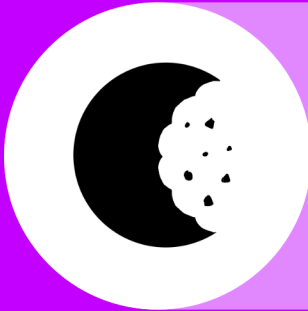

This is an interesting visual. However, some of the appeal of the cookie is lost when it becomes a banana-shaped, decorated cookie.

This sketch shows the concept of a cookie that has either been eaten or shared.

Unfortunately, the message the visual sends may be that the cookie was left behind because it was not enjoyable, which does not fit the friendly likable nature this sketch attempts to show.

SKETCHES CONT.

The concept here is to show the likeable nature of the cookie (and Cassie) by showing the bitten cookie as a visually simplified approach.

However, it appears to be a crescent moon and a smattering of stars, rather than the bitten cookie shape it is intended to be.

This cookie, shaped like a dog's head represents Cassie's loyalty, combined with the friendly, fun, warm nature supplied by the cookie.

However, the detail in this sketch may not render into logo format well.

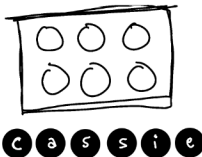

The concept here is to create the sense of friendliness and fun by combining cookies with animals. The thumbprint cookies are in the shape of a print created by either a cat or dog, animals which Cassie likes.

However, it may be difficult to make it clear what kind of cookies these are.

SKETCHES CONT.

The concept of this sketch is to show the friendly, inviting nature of a fresh, warm stack of cookies, representing Cassie's love of baking and sharing nature.

However, the imagery of the cookie stack is unclear.

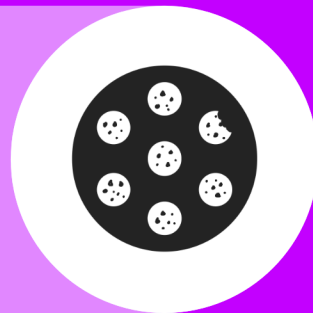

The concept here is of a freshly baked pan of cookies, ready to be shared.

However, the limited amount of detail that can be shown in the logo may make it unclear what the imagery is meant to be.

This sketch shows the concept of a cookie plate filled with cookies ready to share. The cookies on the plate make the plate look like a giant cookie.

However, the level of detail required to make the smaller cookies legible is not well suited to a logo design.

SKETCHES CONT.

This reductive sketch shows an oven mitt, representing Cassies love of baking, as well as a warm, inviting, object ready to share freshly baked cookies.

However, the oven mitt may read more as a winter mitten, rendering the meaning unclear.

This friendly and fun cookie has icing and sprinkles on it lending to the fun, happy personality shared by it and Cassie.

The simplified nature of a pictogram logo may not adapt well to this concept as it may require too much detail and texture to be understood.

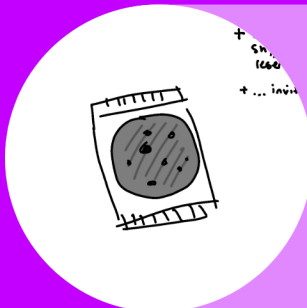

This cookie represents Cassie's sharing nature. The cookie is broken into pie-slice chunks, easily shareable with others.

However, the message may come across differently, showing someone with unhealed trauma, rather than the fun, friendly appeal intended.

SKETCHES CONT.

This cookie represents Cassie's sharing nature, by putting the fun, friendly cookie into a giftbag. The bag also represents the quieter, more reserved side of Cassie.

This concept is interesting, however it may be difficult to keep the delicate, transparency of the bag, while still being legible at small sizes.

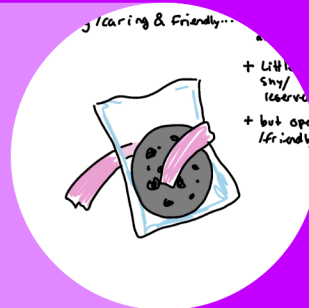

Similarly to the previous concept, the sketch shows a cookie inside a bag. This concept leans more heavily towards showing Cassie's reserved quietness.

However, the store-bought packaging does not reflect well Cassie's love of baking.

Again, similar to the previous two ideas, this concept shows the cookie inside a gift bag. However, this bag is open, representing Cassie's love of sharing with others. It also shows how Cassie opens up to those she knows well.

This concept may not be clear as to the more subtle meanings.

SKETCHES CONT.

Silly/friendly... + sharing?

This concept shows Cassie's friendly, silly side with bananas. Because there are several, they are shareable fruits!

This concept lacks somewhat in meaning and may not be as interesting as some other ideas.

This banana has been turned into a smiley face, intended to show Cassie's fun, friendly and silly side, as well as her value on being kind, and her cheerfulness.

However, the shape of the banana makes the smile look crooked, and may not be improvable.

Silly/friendly... + Kind

Silly/friendly... + Kind

This banana slice has formed the shape of a heart, showing Cassie's caring and kind nature, combined with a bit of fun, silliness that comes from the banana.

This design may not scale well (particularly the center of the banana slice). It also may not be easily recognizable as a banana.

SKETCHES CONT.

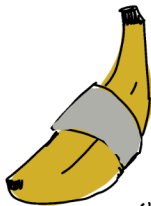

The concept of the fun, friendly, likable banana has been combined with the imagery of a dog, intended to convey a sense of Cassie's loyal nature.

However, the details may be too small to read at small scales.

friendly ... + ...

friendly ...

(duct - tape)

For this concept, the fun banana imagery has been combined with duct tape. This is meant to show Cassie's quietness, and reservation.

However, the duct tape detracts from the fun friendliness of the banana, and does not seem to suit Cassie's fun and friendly nature.

friendly ... + Kind

This banana has been given a smiley face, representing Cassie's fun, friendly, and cheerful personality.

However, the pairing may seem a little odd, and not very clear at small scales.

SKETCHES CONT.

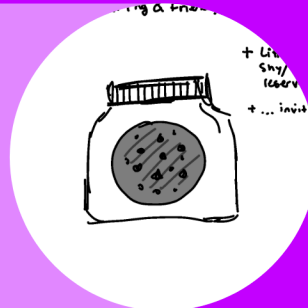

This sketch combines the warm, friendly cookie with the happy, caring, smiley face imagery. This represents Cassie's cheerful and friendly nature.

However it is unclear that the shape is meant to be a cookie.

Placing the cookie in a jar represents Cassie's reserved nature, while still being a friendly and inviting image.

However, the purpose of the cookie jar may not come across with the intended meaning, instead appearing to convey a sense of confinement.

This banana slice is fun and friendly, showing Cassie's fun and friendly and slightly silly personality.

However, it may be unclear to some viewers that this is a banana slice, especially at smaller scales.

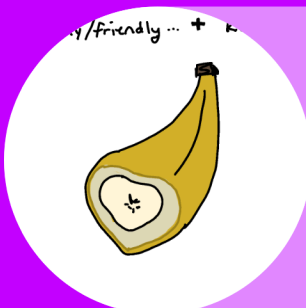

SKETCHES CONT.

Whip cream is added to the concept of the banana slice, to add a softness, representative of Cassie's fluffy nature.

However, it is unclear that the whip cream is supposed to be atop a banana slice.

friendly ... +

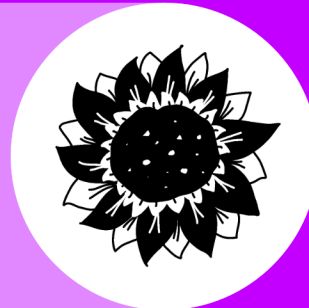

The concept here, is a combination of the fun and silly banana, and a heart, representing Cassie's kind and caring nature.

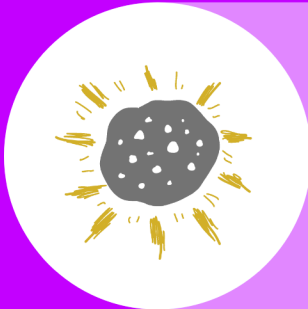

However, the image may not be clear that it is a banana to viewers, especially at small scales.

A cookie has become the center of a sunflower. The sunflower is a bright, happy, cheerful imagery.

However, the imagery may require more detail than is possible in a pictogram logo.

SKETCHES CONT.

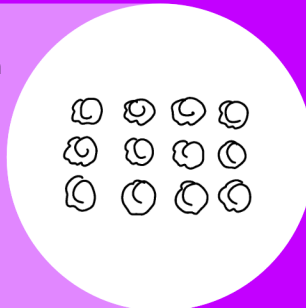

Here the cookie has been combined with the bright, warm and cheerful sun.

However, it is unclear that the imagery is intended to be a sun.

This combines the sharing, friendly qualities of a pan of cookies with the fun associated with making them, by showing a collection of cookie dough scoops ready to be baked.

This is an interesting concept, however, it may not be clear to viewers what the image is meant to represent, and may not be easily adaptable to small scales.

This concept combines the fun friendliness of a cookie with Cassie's love of crafting. The cookie is a felted creation.

However it is difficult to show the felted qualities of the craft, especially in a vectorized logo format.

SKETCHES CONT.

This concept turns the friendly nature of the cookie into an ecstatic, personification of happiness and fun, which represents both the friendly and the fun, silly sides of Cassie.

The smile has a cheshire cat-like quality to it, but that may be a plus, as Cassie enjoys reading and Alice in Wonderland.

This concept makes the friendly nature of a cookie more fun by adding colour.

However this design is lacking the more complex meaningfulness seen in some of the other logo concepts.

This macaron increases the fun level achieved by a normal cookie, with its bright colour. The macaron also adds to the femininity of the cookie.

However, the cookie lacks some of Cassie's characteristic silliness, and is not the most interesting concept.

REFINEMENTS

I chose the bagged cookie as one of my options to refine, converting it to a vector element, then adjusting the line weight so it would be better suited for visibility at smaller scales.

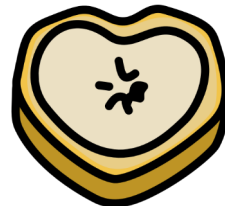

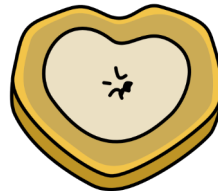

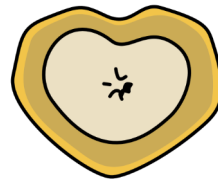

The packaging has a fun pinkish colour, that could be changed for different applications. However, as per the in-class critiques, the concept may be doing too much, so that the primary concepts (showing Cassie's sharing nature) may not be coming across as strongly as they could.

I also chose this concept to refine, adding a stroke and simplifying the shape and colours so it will be readable at a small scale.

I attempted to make it as clear as possible this was a banana slice, however, it was still unclear, coming across as an apple slice or a pie.

Possibly with more refinement this concept could be made clearer, however, it may require too much additional detail to maintain its simplicity.

After further critique, this concept was recommended.

The initial concept was to transform the friendly, likeable nature of the cookie into a cheerful happy face, representing the cheerful, friendly nature Cassie has. The bite represents her love of baking (and eating!) and also ties in her hobby of reading, with it's fun cheshire-like appearance.

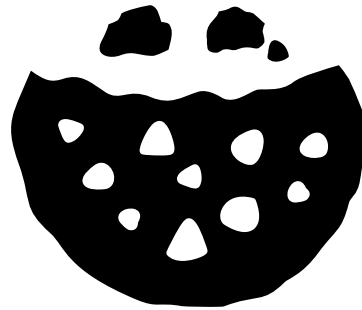

This design has been refined to include some shading and thicker line weights to add depth and be more visible at smaller scales. The eyes from the initial concept have also been changed into cookie chunks, maintaining their delightful, mirthful appeal.

RATIONALE

In the interview, Cassie mentioned one of her favourite hobbies – baking. She enjoys making cookies and sharing them with others – not to mention munching on them herself! The design of this logo is a cookie, which has been bitten to resemble a very large grin. This represents Cassie's friendly and cheerful personality and her love of tasting and sharing her homemade treats with others! The happy face of the logo has a silly, fun appeal, which brings to mind fun characters like the Cheshire cat or another cheerful cartoon character! Though not the main conceptual focus of the logo, Cassie enjoys reading, and Alice in Wonderland is one of her favourites! She also has a similar fun, silly side of her (see in the interview where she describes herself as 'crazy, fat, and weird'). And, of course, cookies themselves have a friendly, likeableness to them – who doesn't love cookies?? – and they are very shareable, which suits Cassie's kind and caring nature.

The accompanying display font is a fun, silly, fat typeface and has been subtly reshaped to mimic the corners of the bitten cookie. The inside of the 'A' takes the shape of one of the cookie's chocolate chips. As described in the guidelines, the cookie can be recoloured to a fun colour like purple or left with the more recognizable cookie tones. Despite some of the smaller details (such as the cookie-crumble eyes), the logo is easily readable at small scales due to its simple shapes and the shadow created by the thickened bottom stroke.
